In an interview with Radio Entrepreneurs AK Ikwuakor, founder of Empower2Play, shares details on the organization's next campaign and the impact it is going to make for the children of Haiti.

AK Ikwuakor joined Radio Entrepreneurs Show as a second time guest speaker on March 16th, 2016. Coach AK is the founder and executive director of NGO Empower2Play and is also the creator of 365DaysWithAK. He has also hosted many webinars aiming to inspire and help people achieve their goals. During the radio interview coach AK explains the impact of his NGO on children in under-resourced communities and how through the sports initiative their leadership skills are developed. The main topic of the radio speaking was the sports diplomacy initiative of Empower2Play during summer 2016. After the successful campaign in The Philippines last year, Empower2Play is now months away from its second sports camp that will take place in Haiti.

Empower2Play is partnering up with the American Embassy in Haiti to execute the campaign and introduce sports diplomacy into the country. The Empower2Play camp will be targeting orphans, who lost their families during the Haiti earthquake in 2010. The goal of the NGO is to create educational opportunities to those children. Together with the organization, students from independent schools like Exeter Academy, will be joining the Haiti Camp and help with the facilitation of the act. Radio Entrepreneurs is a business talk show that hosts successful entrepreneurs and shares their stories with the public. The show is broadcast daily and the guests reveal various stories from their business reality, who they are and how they became entrepreneurs. Some of the guests include Steve Kelly, Cory Schneider and Donna Mavromates. Each show is available on the website for 45 days after the day of the broadcast and a video portion can be found on Radio Entrepreneurs' YouTube Channel.
