

Empower2Play presents “Building a Better Leader” speaking engagement at Exeter High School

PRESS RELEASE • FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

BOSTON, MA- 04/05/2016

The event is to be held on Friday, April 8th at 9 AM in Arthur Hansen Auditorium. The speaker of the event AK Ikwaakor, founder and executive director of Empower2Play, will introduce students to the Student Ambassador program of the organization and the opportunity of joining the program.

The Student Ambassador program of Empower2Play is targeting high school and college students, who have passion for sports and the impact that it has on developing personal skills. The program gives students the opportunity to start building up on their future careers while giving back to the society- all of that through sports. After the speaking engagement AK will be leading a workshop on “Finding Your Voice on Stage: How Being Yourself Builds Connections and Moves Mountains.” The workshop aims on showing students ways to develop their leadership skills and how to turn ambitions into goals and success.

"Our theme for the day is building a better leader. We are excited about Coach AK's message about finding your voice. Leadership starts with knowing who you are and how you can contribute to the group." - Dan Provost, EHS Student Senate Advisor & NHASC Southern District Advisor.

Exeter High School is a public high school that puts an emphasis on self-direction and community-wide collaboration as part of a learning process. The school creates an environment where students engage in meaningful and challenging educational experiences, learn how to express knowledge and ideas while building mutual understanding, demonstrate self-advocacy and personal growth and strive for their highest academic and social potential. Exeter High School's students participate in two semesters of athletic programs as part of their education. The school offers more than 30 interscholastic teams at varsity and junior varsity level.

For the event, students from other six local high schools are invited and will be attending. The participating schools are Raymond High School, Sanborn Regional High School, Salem High School, Somersworth High School, Timberlane Regional High School, Winnacunnet High School.
